Advocacy: Year End Legal Update

By Jayson Welter, General Counsel, UnitedAg

Each year UnitedAg's Advocacy Committee sets its legislative priorities with input from our membership. This year, we continued to focus on healthcare, PAGA, water, pesticides, labor and wage issues at the state level and to monitor immigration and H-2A regulations at the federal level. Additionally, this year we organized a legislative day early in the year to further our advocacy efforts.

It was another interesting year in Sacramento, but this year was a bit different because it was the first of a two-year session. This means, bills that didn't pass this year could be held over to continue their development next year.

This year there were 2397 bills introduced, compared to 2124 bills introduced last year. 917 bills made it to the Governor's desk with him signing 794 and vetoing 123 of them, a veto percentage of 13% compared to 18% last year.

Last year, there were a number of bills that were amended or dramatically changed at the last minute. Feedback of that process was quite negative and this year the legislature responded favorably.

After several years of Senator Caballero trying to establish a target for water storage in the California Water Plan, she succeeded this year with the Governor signing SB 72. The Bill requires long-term water supply targets be established and strategies to meet those targets.

The Plan is to be established by 2028 and be updated every five years thereafter. Finally, the Plan establishes an interim planning target of 9,000,000 acre-feet of additional water, water conservation, or water storage capacity to be achieved by 2040. SB 601 (Allen) proposed to expand water discharge permitting in California, but it went far beyond federal protection and created significant regulatory, legal, and economic burdens. It also would have added new water quality permit requirements for dischargers, created a new category of waters under the highly litigated term "nexus waters," and contained a private right of action. The bill was held by the author but could be reintroduced next year.

Similarly, AB 1331 (Elhawary) sought to regulate and limit surveillance technology but did so with broad language that would have effectively banned most forms of monitoring, even those essential for workplace safety, compliance and property protection. After significant feedback and opposition, the bill was held by the author but could be reintroduced next year.

There were a number of bills this year where there was a long process of amendments and feedback with the drafters. A great example of this is AB 1264 (Gabriel) which established Ultra Processed Food standards. Initially, the bill would have been catastrophic for agriculture and would have labeled many fresh agricultural products as ultra processed despite being minimally processed. With a lot of coordination though several agricultural advocacy groups, the legislation was passed, but with agriculturally friendly amendments. The goal of establishing processing standards while not imposing unrealistic labels on California's agricultural economy was a success.

AB 732 (Macedo) addressed the problem of abandoned or neglected farmland posing a nuisance to other farmers. This law creates civil penalties to encourage these lands to be maintained to avoid harboring pests and disease that can threaten healthy crops. Additionally, SB 279 (McNerney) expanded the ability of agriculture to compose on-site up to 200 cubic yards of material at a time. This will hopefully reduce the cost of managing agricultural waste material.

Advocacy: Year End Legal Update - Continued

At the end of session, the unity and strength of the agricultural voice in Sacramento was heard when Senator Hurtado, the Senate Agriculture Committee Chairperson, proposed SB 295. This bill would have prohibited a person from distributing a pricing algorithm or making recommendations based on the use of a pricing algorithm that uses, incorporates, or was trained with, competitor data. Agriculture was specifically included in the bill. Much of agriculture also uses public consolidated data in pricing which this bill would have prohibited. Despite several attempts to modify the bill, the author refused resulting in a strong opposition campaign by our advocacy partners. The bill was ultimately defeated in a 12-24 vote.

We were quite concerned that the Cap and Trade program and Greenhouse Gas Reduction Fund were in jeopardy this year. Late in the legislative session, AB 1207 (Irwin) was passed to continue the Cap and Trade program and SB 840 (Limon) extended the Greenhouse Gas Reduction Fund. These programs fund a number of different agricultural improvement programs which many of our Members access to offset the expenses of implementing new technologies.

Last, a healthcare related bill that we provided feedback on and suggested amendments was SB 306 (Becker) which addressed Health Care Prior Authorizations. This bill passed, but with several amendments that were suggested to address our concerns of using prior authorization to engage with patients proactively. UnitedAg uses prior authorization as a valuable tool to identify patients that need case management, care coordination, support services or other higher-level services to ensure they receive best care possible for their condition.

Without using prior authorization to alert us to these conditions, we may not be aware until a provider submits a claim which could delay these support services for months. The amendments allow UnitedAg to continue to use prior authorizations for this purpose while still achieving the author's goals which was to reduce unnecessary prior authorizations.

UnitedAg continues its longstanding relationships with terrific advocacy partners such as the National Council of Agricultural Employers, the Agricultural Council of California, Kahn, Soares & Conway and the Alliance of California Farmers and Ranchers and the Alliance of California Farmers and Ranchers Community Fund. Through these organizations and our own efforts, we have been a voice for agriculture and made strides to support healthcare in our communities.

We encourage everyone to be educated and involved in the legislative process next year. If you have any questions or would like to get involved in advocacy, please reach out to Jayson Welter who leads our advocacy efforts.
