What are the symptoms of (COVID-19)?

Symptoms typically appear within 2 to 14 days after exposure to the virus. People with these symptoms may have COVID-19:

- Fever or chills
- Cough
- Shortness of breath or difficulty breathing
- Fatigue
- Muscle or body aches
- Headache
- New loss of taste or smell
- Sore throat
- Congestion or runny nose
- Nausea or vomiting
- Diarrhea

This is not a complete list. Please consult with your medical provider for any other symptoms that are severe or concerning to you.

How is COVID-19 spread?

The virus is airborne and spreads from person to person, between people who are in close contact with one another (within about 6 feet) or through respiratory droplets produced when an infected person coughs or sneezes. You may be at greater risk if you have recently lived in, visited or traveled to a "COVID-19 hot spot" region where there are high levels of positive COVID-19 cases or if you come into contact with someone who has the virus.

How severe is the COVID-19 pandemic?

Many cases are mild but individuals with pre-existing conditions (like heart and lung diseases or diabetes) are especially vulnerable.

Currently there has been a dramatic increase in the number of cases involving younger patients. The following is the current percentage of cases in California by age:

- Under 18 22%
- 18-34 24%
- 35-49 19%
- 50-59 13%
- 60-64 6%
- Over 65 16%

All ages, especially the elderly are encouraged to practice "self-quarantine" or "isolation" to avoid exposure to the virus.

How do I protect myself and my family?

Basic measures to stay healthy include washing your hands frequently for 20 seconds, maintain social distance (6 ft) from others, wear a mask (or face covering to avoid the spread of respiratory droplets), avoid touching your eyes, face, nose, mouth and stay away from others who are sick. If you experience fever, cough, and difficulty breathing please seek medical attention immediately. Call ahead before you go to a UnitedAg Health Center, doctor's office or emergency room.

All businesses (grocery stores, container stores, bodegas, restaurants, etc.) are now requiring all clients to wear face masks.

If I contract COVID-19 in the workplace and become ill, will my health benefits plan cover my treatment and care?

Your health benefits plan will cover your treatment and care as long as your claim does not fall under a workers' compensation rebuttable presumption.

If you contract COVID-19 within fourteen (14) days of having worked at your standard workplace, there is a rebuttable presumption that you contracted the virus at your workplace. Therefore, there is a strong likelihood you will be covered for your treatment and care by your employer's workers' compensation carrier.

Your COVID-19 illness will be presumed to be work-related for the purpose of awarding worker's compensation benefits as long as the following requirements are met:

- Employee tested positive within 14 days of having last worked for the employer.
- The day on which employee worked for the employer was on or after March 19, 2020.
- The employee's place of employment was not the employee's home or place of residence.
- The diagnosis was made by a licensed and registered physician issued by the California Medical Board and that testing is further confirmed by additional testing within 30 days of the date of diagnosis.

If your diagnosis of COVID-19 is determined not to be covered by workers' compensation, your health benefits Plan will cover your treatment and care.

How will UnitedAg ensure that there are medical providers available to provide access to medical care?

Your health plan offers several options for you to receive proper medical care. You can call or visit a UnitedAg Health and Wellness Center; schedule a medical consultation via telephone or skype using Teladoc or receive medical care from a Blue Shield of California contracted provider.

First Health applies outside of CA & SAIN Medical Network in Mexico*

If you are unable to utilize any of these options for medical care, you can seek care from a non-contracting provider. Be aware, however, that there may be a greater out-of-pocket expense if you utilize a non-contracting provider. However, if there are no contracting providers in your area, "Special Circumstances" will apply. For more information please refer to the Summary Plan Description for more details.

What can I do if I am laid-off or furloughed during the COVID-19 pandemic and my employer does not continue my health benefits?

If you lose your health care benefits because you are furloughed or laid-off, you have a few options for continuing your health care benefits.

UnitedAg (UABT) will offer you the opportunity to continue your benefits through COBRA. When your employer notifies UnitedAg that you are no longer working and receiving benefits, we will send you a letter explaining your COBRA rights and the costs for continuing your existing benefits. If you wish to continue your health benefits, you are responsible for paying your monthly contribution (premium).

The COBRA election period has been extended. Under COBRA, employees and dependents who lose active coverage as a result of a qualifying event, such as termination of employment or reduction in hours, normally have 60 days to elect continuation of coverage after receiving a COBRA election notice. Under the new Department of Labor rule, the 60-day timeframe doesn't start until the end of the Outbreak Period.

You may also be eligible to enroll in the California Exchange (Covered California), Arizona Exchange (Cover Arizona) or MediCal.*

Am I eligible for unemployment if I am furloughed, terminated?
